About This Game

Super Hexagon is a minimal action game by Terry Cavanagh, with music by Chipzel.

Important facts about Hexagons:

- Hexagons are third order permutohedrons: The vertices of a hexagon can be formed by permuting the coordinates of the vector (1, 2, 3).
- The north pole of the planet Saturn has a hexagonal storm cloud pattern with 8,600 mile long sides, larger than the diameter of Earth.
- Though hexagon may appear to be a difficult word to rhyme, there are actually dozens of words that rhyme with it. For example: Autobahn, decagon, decathlon, electron, Kyrgyzstan, Lebanon, leprechaun and marathon.

You get what you see. I'd say watch the video and decide if that kind of gameplay is for you. The soundtrack rocks too. Personally, I like to play it here and there and it is only 3 bucks after all, I had a lot of fun with it so far.. 100 hours and I regret nothing.. it's a bit stressing but fun. Weirdly unfrustrating for being one of the hardest games of all time. I actually play this game when I want to chill out now...after you get the basics down, playing a few minutes of Super Hexagon is not entirely unlike meditation -- you just listen to the music and let the game play itself and let your mind drift and go along for the ride. A legitimate masterpiece, and insanely good value even at full price.. Best game I ever played

5/5 stars. Begin! Game over. Begin! Game over. Begin! Game over. Begin! Line! Game over. Begin! Game over.. If you have a history of epilepsy or seizures, avoid this game as much as you can; And if you're stubborn like most people, immediately stop playing should symptoms begin to arise. The game kind of lacks that warning, because this game is nothing but flashing lights and eccentric, fast-moving patterns.

I want to say I hate this game with every fiber in my being, in this life and in the next several ones.

There are times where you thought you got hit, but the triangle decided to black-magic its way into the safe area, and face-planting into the next non-hexagon because you accepted defeat too early. Then there are times where you, with absolute confidence, were sure you wouldn't get hit but joke's on you because it's suddenly game over because the triangle was late by a single cunthair of pixel, sometimes even no cunthairs can be present. The emotion that is present during that time - That is pure wrath.

But then there are times where you hit that 60 second mark, even a 180 one, and you feel like a god or goddess, smirking there like you've just done the world a good thing and deserve all the worship it can give you. The emotion present during that time? That is pure happiness and relief.

I recommend this game to those seeking a challenge, or to those who want to improve their reflexes somehow, or to those who have 50 cents to spare and are currently looking for something to buy, provided that the game is on sale. You will both will and will not regret it~

P.S.

Dark Souls? HA!

In Super Hexagon, you literally DIE IN SECONDS.. The most intense game I have ever played. The soundtrack is amazing and getting a new high-score is so worth it.

Edit: Repetitive Strain Injury

- Turned too much
 - Turned too little
 - Went the wrong way
 - Slowpoked there for half a second
 - \u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665ing spin, I lost myself

You always know what you did wrong with this game. Despite it being difficult, I don't think it ever feels unfair. If you stick with it for long enough, you'll beat it for sure. Gitin gud is real. The question is whether you'd want to stick with it? So far I got bored after two levels, but it's easy to come back even after a prolonged period of time.. I have every achievement which means I'm either extremely perceptive or extremely autistic. Most likely both
